Beware SHOPPING CART page

By jenifer cartwright

I love this concept. It is a really exciting experience for a child who is genuinely interested in learning about dinosaurs, or even for a child who just loves the gimmick of seeing 3D dinosaurs roaming in his or her own world. But there are only four interactive pages in this book, and then lo and behold, a shopping cart page, which takes you to a store offering to sell you other interactive pages at $4 (NZD) a pop. My four-year-old son desperately wanted to see the "swimming" dinosaur in action, but you have to pay $4 to see it. And if you have an iPad and also have the app on an Android phone, then you have to pay twice. And now he has found out that there's a way to see the page he wants, and we feel the pressure of obligation to pay further money. Great idea, love that my kids are so fascinated by it but can't help feeling a bit let down.
